Saigon's Generals Foresee Indefinite War With Hanoi

By Malcolm W. Browne

SAIGON, Aug. 15 (NYT).-Provided that U.S. support of the war effort here is not radically reduced by Congress or the election of George McGovern to the presidency. South Vietnamese commanders foresee an indefinite military conflict with Hanoi that could last years or decades.

Airlines Serving Hijacker Havens Face Ban by U.S.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15 |Reuters). - Fifty - one congressmen have joined in sponsoring legisla-tion that would close U.S. airports to any international sirline serving countries that offer a haven to an accused airline hi-

The introduction of the bill follows the approval last week the House of a measure authorizing President Nixon to shut off economic and military ald to any nation failing to prosecute or extradite air pirates.

A spokesman for Rep. Ogden Reld. D., N. Y., who introduced the House bill, said the measure would require that the air carrier certificate of any airline flying to a country harboring the hijacker he withdrawn.

As an example, he said the bili would isolate airlines such as British Overseas Airways and Air France, since they both serve Algeria. He sald that Algeria would be the most obvious country affected by the bill, since it is not a party to the international agreements prohibiting air piracy.

ments. He said Mr. Clark was "duped" by Hanol into playing "cruelly upon the daep concerns" of the POW's families

On Capitol Hill, Senate Minor-ity Leader Hugh Scott, R., Pa., and Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D., Wash., joined in the criticism of Mr. Clark. In a Senate speech, the GOP leader said Mr. Clark permitted himself "to be used by Hanoi" and had brought politics into the matter by suggesting that a McGovern election would hring the POWs' release.

"I bope the American people will reject this sort of campaigning over the enemy's borders,"

Sen, Scott said. Sen, Jackson sald in a TV interview that Mr. Clark saw only what Hanoi wanted him to see. The Democratic senator commented: "I don't think he ought to make general statements with-out saying that he was taking a conducted tour."

At the Pentagon, Assistant Defense Secretary Daniel Benkin said Mr. Clark "withheld infor-mation from our government and the families" by falling to give the Defense Department "an opportunity to notify in advance the families of the approximately 10 American prisoners of war shown in the Communist propaganda film" Mr. Clark ran in San Francisco.

Kennedy Move

Mr. Henkin, the Pentagon's public Information chief, accused the former Johnson administration cabinet officer of hecoming "involved in the enemy's propaganda efforts" and alleged that Mr. Clark had failed to urge Hanoi officials to abide hy the Geneva conventions prescribing treatment of war captives.

Meanwhile, in a move that will highlight criticism by Sen. Mc-Govern and other Democrats of the administration's bombing offensive in North Vietnam, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D., Mass., announced the scheduling of a public hearing tomorrow on the effect on civilians of the aerial attacks. Mr. Clark will be the first witness to testify before his refugees subcommittee, Sen, Kennedy said, although representatives of the State and Defense Departments also have been invited to appear

Mr. Laird spoke along the same line Mr. Henkin took in Wash-ington. The Pentagon, the secretary said, was carefully checking pictures from Mr. Clark that were carried in the press, although "he has not released them to his own government."

The defense chief said "a majority of [the prisoners] are people who have been in this role before." He disputed Mr. Clark's characterization of Communist treatment of American POWs as "humane." saying he did not consider it humane to refuse to tell the families of prisoners and missing whether their men were alive or dead.

"I cannot describe that treatment as humane," said Mr. Laird. "It is very inhumane." Report ... False

The secretary, who spoke with reporters after testifying before the Republican Platform Committee in Miami Beach, said of the Trinh statement about prisoner release quoted by Mr. Clark. "We've had reports like that continuously for the past 12 months. I can assure you those reports have been checked out through the negotlating process The report has proved to be false."

Mr. Mitchell, in his statement here, called Mr. Clark "a naive American [who] has been unwittingly duped into playing Hanol's wretched game, into serving as an American megaphone for Communist propa-

The response of anthorities in Kwangtung, China's southernmost province, has been a drive against crime and a tightening of border controls, according to reports by refugees and travelers.

Mass trials have been held in Canton and other areas, they said. At one trial more than 20 youths were reported to have been convicted of various charges ranging from breaking into houses to picking pockets and have been sentenced to long terms in labor

Penalties for Fleeing Stiffer penalties have been imposed on people caught trying to reach Hong Kong. Punishment has been extended to some of-fenders' relatives, who have been forced to pay up to double-the ufficial price for their rice ration.

At least one youth was said to have been sentenced to death at a recent trial during which he and a number of other young people were accused of attempting to leave China illegally. Since such a sentence is most unusual, it is believed probable here that he faced other undisclosed

In the crackdown against crime in Canton, where a flareup in juvenile gang fights and petty theft has been reported, public security personnel have instituted widespread "stop and search" operations aimed at apprehending youths who have deserted from assigned posts in rural areas and returned to Canton. A flourish-ing trade in forged identity papers been reported.

U.S. Sources Deny Report of Peace Progress in Laos

SAIGON, Aug. 15 (AP).—U.S. diplomatic sources said today that there has been no progress reported in peace talks between the royal Lactian government and the Communist Pathet Lac in Vientiane.

Earlier, the Bangkok Post had reported that Laotian Premier Lao leader Prince Souphanouvong had agreed on a "general cease-fire" throughout Taos to be supervised by an expanded International Control Commission. The U.S. sources, familiar with the negotiations, said thera had been no new developments since the on-and-off talks were resumed more than three weeks ago. They termed the Bangkok Post report "misleading." The post dispatch, which did not mention any sources for its story, said the two princes agreed to hold peace talks based on Souphanouvong's five-point proposal. The diplomatic sources said the proposal hod been made two years ago and that Souvanna Phoums had agreed earlier that "it could be used as a basis for further negotiations." The key points of the proposal call for respect of the neutrality of Laos, upholding the monarchy and establishment of a provisional government until elections are

Hazard to Health Seen in Lead-Base Newspaper Ink

NEWARK, N.J., Aug. 15 (UPI). -Widespread use of lead-based inks in newspapers and magazines may contribute to environmental lead contamination and could pose serious health problems to children, according to medical researchers. Morris M. Joselow, director of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, said that the lead from the ink may be a danger to children who make a habit of chewing on bits of newspaper. Spot checks of several region newspapers in the New York metropolitan area as well as a number of leading national magazines revealed lead con-per million, the medical school said in a statement. The maximum acceptable lead intake for children is 300 micrograms per day, the school said. Since intake of lead up to 200 micrograms is nnavoidable from food, air and water, it would take only the ingestion of lead "easily obtainable from a few spitballs" to exceed the "safe"

The result would be elevated blood lead levels which could lead to lead poisoning, the school

Another hazard posed by the lead concentrations in ink occurs when newspeners and magazines are burned or incinerated, releasing the lead into the atmosphere, the school added.

were wounded. This version of the shooting in the Neapolitan Noodle Restaurant on East 79th Street was given yesterday by Police Commissioner Patrick V. Murphy.

Mr. Murphy said that the four rictims were standing et e place at the bar that had been racated a few minutes earlier by the four Mafia members. He said that the four mobsters had retired to a table in the rear of the restanrant and were sitting there when the businessmen were shot.

Warfare Continues

He said that the shootings were undoubtedly a continuation of the gang warfare between the Mafia families of Joseph Colombo ar and the late Joseph (Crazy Joe) Gallo, who was slain earlier this year in a Little Italy restanrant in Manhattan. Political Diplomacy

It is customary in the United States every four years, to hitch diplomacy to the charlot of some aspirant or incumhent candidate for the presidency. Most sophisticated foreigners and probably a majority of Americans are aware of this and make discounts. accordingly, for acts and words that arc clearly politically inspired. Nevertheless, it is a dangerous game, and one that has to be played with greater caution than Gov. Rockefeller displayed in Israel or former Attorney General Ramsey Clark showed in Hanoi.

Both of these gentlemen were more cautions before American press conferences on their return to the United States than when abroad-wblch is just the reverse of the way they should have spoken. Mr. Rockefeller stated flatly in Tel Aviv that Presideut Nixon had discussed in Moscow the plight of Soviet Jews "and be secured an agreement at that conference" which permitted the emigration of some 35,000 Soviet Jews to Israel this year. In New York the governor said that he did not intend to convey the idea that there had been a formal agreement, only "a meeting of the minds." The White House, while applauding the increase in the number of Soviet Jews permitted to leave the U.S.S.R., denied that there had been any deal.

Mr. Rockefelier has long had close association with the State Department. He should have been aware that such remarks as he made in Israel can cause more embarrassment to his government than the political dividends at home might justify. In any case, protocol demands that such matters be stated on the joint authority of the two governments principally involved: If there was such an agreement, and the governor simply "leaked" it to the press, he has gone a long way toward justifying the contentions of the defense in the Pentagon papers case.

For Mr. Clark it can be argued that he passed through the Department of Justice with remarkably little impairment of his fundamental idealism. He says now that he had not accepted an invitation to speak on the Hanoi radio, but that some of his statements to journalists there might have been broadcast. That many who agree with Mr. Clark's position on the bombing of North Vietnam believe that he chose the wrong place and the wrong circumstances to have them made public does not seem to occur to Moreover, as a former attorney general, Mr. Clark should be aware that, as a private citizen, he does not have as he claims a statutory right to go to North Vletnam to do what he could to try to bring peace and to gain the release of prisoners. To be sure, that statutory provision is so vague, and has been violated so often, that it is hardly likely to be invoked. But it exists, and to hring proposals from North Vietnam's deputy premier and minister of foreign affairs, while both secret and official negotlations are under way in Parls, would seem to come within its scope.

Gov. Rockefeller's indiscretion coincides with what is generally taken to be a strong Republican effort to win the Jewish vote. Mr. Clark, with wonderful naïveté, attempted no concealment of his purposes; he quoted a Hanoi editor as saying that "if there were a change of administration," the American prisoners of war would be released on inauguration day-Jan. 20, 1973. This is as hiatant a hit of blackmall as has appeared in an American election campaign. It is to he hoped that the remainder of the contest will be conducted by both sides on a plane that takes greater cognisance of the real American position in the world, and devotes less energy to the exploitation of that position for votes, mediate 90-day freeze on wages and prices, to he followed by an elahorate and comprehensive system of wage and price controls. The attack on unemployment called for tax cuts and deficit spending to knock the economy out of its lethargy. The battle to improve the balance of international payments involved halting the convertibility of dollars to gold and imposing a temporary import surcharge in hopes of forcing a currency realignment more favorable to the United States and creating a more flexible international monetary system.

Nixon's Economic Policy

The economic situation a year ago was bleak and discouraging. The unemployment rate, which had been about 3.3 percent when President Nixon took office, had climbed to over 6 percent. Consumer prices were climbing about 6 percent a year and showing only slight signs of slowing down. To top it off, halance of payments deficits kept piling up at record levels, and foreigners, increasingly reluctant to hold large amounts of dollars, were asking for gold. America's hitherto comforting gold reserves were beginning to look a bit puny.

As the economy creaked along through the first half of 1971, the administration seemed paralyzed by its own infiexible ldeology. The President and his advisers professed shock at the very idea of devaluing the dollar and vociferously opposed all suggestions for controls on prices and wageseven the promulgation of wage-price "guidelines." They were sure that holding down government spending would cool off the economy and slow the price rise. When the policy failed and only unemployment resulted, they seemed to have no fall-hack position. They blamed the unemployment on the deescalation of the war (or denied that it was serious) and insisted things would get better.

Compared with what might have happened had the President not finally acted last August 15 (and this is the comparison he clearly wants us to draw) the new economic policy is a success. Indeed on the international scene he could not have let things allde much longer. The dollar was overvalued and its use as the world's main international money put the United States in

The tough talk, and Mr. Connally's bluster which accompanied these moves, did do serious damage to our relations with Japan and Europe, however, and delayed rather than hastened the process of constructing a new monetary system,

> On the domestic scene things are clearly hetter than they would have been if the old game plan had been followed. Prices subject to controls are not rising as fast as they were, although food prices remain a problem. It is true that the rate of increase in consumer prices was slackening even before the controls, but that does not prove the controls were unnecessary. The existence of controls has undoubtedly allowed the government to stimulate economic activity without reescalating the inflation. And the stimulation has worked. All the domestic economy's vital signs have turned in a healthy direction since first of the year, profits are soaring and even the stubborn unemployment rate has finally inched down from 6.0 to 5.5 percent.

> But one can commend the captain for the decisive way in which he refloated his ship without handing him a Medai of Honor for running it aground in the first place. If the President and his advisers had recognized sooner that they were off course -that inflation was not yielding, while unemployment was mounting-such drastic saivage operations would not have been necessary.

> Even starting from where the President found himseif a year ago, we do not view the new economic policy as an unmixed

> We also helieve Mr. Nixon relied far too heavily on tax relief to business as a way of stimulating the economy. Increased spending or temporary tax relief for consumers would have stimulated the economy in a more aquitable way. Better still, the deliberately created recession of 1970-71 could have been avolded. At hest, then, it can be said that Mr. Nixon recognized his own mistakes before the vessel was totally wrecked and took hold, if and so fir only partially successful, actions to get it hack on course.

PARIS.—Prince Henri d'Orleans met the Count of Turin in single combat resterday morning. The Prince was wounded twice: once slightly on the right side of the chest, and once more seriously in the lower right of the abdomen. It is not thought that Prince Henri's injuries are grave enough to give cause for any anxiety. At six o'clock a bulletin was issued by his doctors saying that he had passed a good day and that no complications had arisen. The encounter took place at five o'clock in the morning, at the Bois des Marechaux.

Prison Purifies the Soul

By C. L. Sulzberger

BELGRADE -The most famous Markist heretic within this heretically Marxist land is Milovan Dillas, once number two in the hierarchy, who staged an ideological revolt against Tito not long after Tito himself had staged an ideological revolt against Stalin and his mono-lithic brand of Communism.

Following Stalin's death, Tito devised a makeshift settlement with Moscow that is more truce than accord. But Djilas has never made up with Tito and his own heresy, while not attract. ing avowed recruits as did Tito-ceeded to logical conclusions. "Ideologies are dead." he said, "and religion is in a crisis. Ideoiogy is only a pseudo-religion. It is good for a fighting sect in time of war or revolution, not for people as a whole. Ideology must be totalitarian to carry conviction, whereas religion should never be totalitarian. "But humanity can never live without religion-including philosophy as a form of religion. I am not a religious man, but that itself is a form of religion. I don't believe in God. But I helleve in conscious human improvement. I believe we are a part of this great cosmos in which we are living."

Djilas, a slight man with a quizzical, intelligent face, marked by sadness in repose, has come far since he was born to a poor family in Montenegro. He saw his first rallway train in 1929 when he rode here to attend a university, was imprisoned from 1933 to 1938 as a Communist by the pre-war monarchy, and then helped organize the underground

Partisan Leader

During World War II he was an exceptionally brave Partisan leader. He became a favorite of Stalin and one of Tito's in-timates until, eventually, he decided the Marxist system was unjust. He was twice imprisoned by his former comrades, from 1956 to 1961 and again from 1963 to 1966. Theoretically he is now free, but there are limitations. He is refused a passport to travel abroad and none of his remarkshie writings can he oublished

I asked Dillas what prison does to a man. He said: "It is good, but not for too long, if one is both a fighter and a seeker. Isolation helps one to analyze and correct his opinions. Prison is a unique place in which a strong, healthy man, able to resist, can discover his own capabilities.

"Under the monarchy, I was beaten by the police. After the war, prison life was easier. But when I went to prison after the war, the first term came as a special shock because my own comrades arrested me. I was still emotionally connected with

"What I feared most was that they might cause me to change my opinions with special injections. Of course this was a form of mania,

"My second postwar term changed me radically. I became peaceful and quiet. Soon I feit that I could continue in prison, if necessary, until the end of my life, something like a medieval monk. In the monarchy's prison. I had finished my education as a Communist, both through books and in discussions with prisoners. I became a dedicated fighter. During my first postwar term I deepened my opinions on mankind and destiny.

Now I am a more integral man,

Now I live in my own world, and I am happler than I ever from all the necessary freedoms was before, even when I was in and it will take a long time to achieve them."

Prison is a cruel philosophical school, but if one is tough and determined enough to survive and of a Socratic nature, its purgative influence is immense. The first time, Djilas was locked up as a resolute Communist. The the fact that I am sinful and last time he emerged he was pure not perfect. But 20 years ago of heart.

Up-Tight Republicans

By Joseph Kraft

WASHINGTON.—When it comes to blowing big leads by uptight campaigning, Richard Nixon holds the title deeds. So this year he is trying to stay above the battle, making it seem that the fellow in the White House seeking re-election is not old pol Nixon but some ethereal being, preordained for the job, who might more appropriately called Richard M. President. he

But somehow Mr. Nixon has imparted his tension end selfdoubt to the men around him. In the opening exchanges of the campaign, the Republicans have shown as a group the same uptight campaigning style which used to distinguish Mr. Nixon's solo efforts.

A nice case in point is the treatment of former Attorney General Ramzey Clark in the wake of his two-week visit to Hanol Mr. Clark allowed himself to be used hy the Hanci radio in a way that others of us who have visited North Vietnam avoided. He is subject to legitimate criticism for poor judgment in this and other

But the Nixon administration was not content to point out the facts and let the workings of American public opinion do tha rest. Instead, two hig guns were wheeled up campaign manager Clark MacGregor and former Attorney General John Mitchell. Mr. MacGregor said that Mr. Clark had "broadcast enemy propaganda to American servicemen." Mr. Mitchell called Mr. Clark's behavior "outrageous," and by some wild stretch managed to connect it up with a comment made by Sen. George Mc-Govern last year to the effect that Ramsey Clark or "someone along that line" should succeed J Edgar Hoover as bead of the FBI. Mr. Mitchell then called on Sen. McGovern to repudiate Mr.

Sen. McGovern saw the opening and moved right in. During an appearance on a television program, he said the charge against Mr. Clark was an example of Mr. Nixon'e "taking the low road hy remote control." Thus in one quick thrust the Damocratic nominee went off the defensive and onto the offensive. He put Mr. Nixon and his notsome past record as a campaigner

front and center

Another case in point is the administration's response to Sargent Shriver's strictures on Vietnam. In opening his campaign as the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, Mr. Shriver claimed that he quit as ambassador to Paris back in January, 1970, because he was unhappy with the President's failure to bring the Paris peace talks to a successful conclusion; According to Mr. Shriver, "Nixon: had peace handed to him literally in his lap. He blew it."

Mr. Shriver's dubious claim about the motives for his resignation should have been brushed off as the huzz of a pesky gnat, It would have sufficed to surface Shriver's letter of resignation with its warm tone and the statement that there had been accomplished the "beginnings of peace." The media could baye done the rest, since many jour-nalists who had visited Shriver in Paris had been far more impressed with the fervor of his ambition than with the delicacy of his conscience about the war.

Another Big Gun

Instead the administration unlimbered another hig gun-Secretary of State William Rogers. He launched a hlanket attack on the Shriver claims as "bunk ... a fabrication. just political fan-tasy." That indiscriminate retort brought a heavyweight in on Mr.

Ambassedor W. Averell Harriman had previously refused to work for the McGovern-Shriver ticket. But he all along believed —and repeatedly said—that be had brought the Paris negotiations to the verge of settlement in October and November, 1968. Feeling that his efforts had been disparaged by Secretary Rogers, Ambassador Harriman weighed in with an accounting of his last weeks at the Paris peace conference. The upshot was to deepen what had been a trivial affair and build new unity among the Democrats. The bearing of all this on the vote in November is hard to read. But it is clear that the strategy of keeping Mr. Nixon above the battle is not so easy to implement. Mr. Nixon presses so hard that those around him also develop the qualities that have repeatedly brought the Democrats together against him in the past.

100 Years as Outcasts

East Africa's Asian

By Stanley Meisler

MAIROBI.-David Livingstone may have been a centile missionary, but he had no kinder words for the Asians of East Africa a century ago than does Idi Amin, the rough soldier who is expelling them from Uganda.

Livingstone accused them of financing the sieve trade in East Africa. In a letter to an agent of the London Miniousry Society, he wrote: "Inese wretched British Indian subjects who would not hurt a flen are really by their money, arms, ammunition and goods in the hands of their Arab agents really the worst cannibais in all Africa."

The Livingstone letter is hardly unique. The Asians, as the immigrants from old British India are called; have been the object of scorn and denigration and jealcusy in East Afric. for more than a hundred years. President Amin's decision to expel most of them from Ugen. in three months is only the most blatant and brutal of a long series of discriminatory acts.

The history of the Asians in East Africa is a strange story of privilege and insecurity.

In the early 19th century, the British encouraged Indian merchants to set up thop on Zanzibar and the nearby coast. The Indiane were British subjects. In the era of imperialism, the Brit-ish could use British Indian commerce as an excuse for British political influence. The Indian traders helped case the way to British rule.

Controlled Trade

By 1860, 5,000 British Indians. who were known as Banyans or Hindis, lived on Zanzibar and in the coastal dominions of the sultan of Zanzibar. They con-trolled almost all foreign trade, even acting as agents for the British and American merchant firms. Indian traders som be-came the bankers of Zanzibar. Many Arab and Swahili plantations were mortgaged to them. The Indian rupes replaced the Maria Theresa dollar as the main

The Indian merchants aroused the usual scorn and earnity for moneylenders. It was this feeling about moneylenders that powered Livingstone's attack on Livingstone's criticism led to the appointment of a British mission in 1873 to study the slave trade in East Africa, Sir Bartle Frere, the head of the mission, reached a different conclusion than Livingstone and attributed the trade mostly to Arabs and Swahilis. Sir Bartle said that the Indians were not directly implicated but did take part in "aiding, abetting and concealing

The British decision in 1895 to build the Uganda railroad from Mombasa on the coast to Lake Victoria drew the Asians into the interior of East Africa for the first time. The British imported more than 32,000 Indian coolies to build the railroad. Many Africans, including President Amin, seem to believe that the present Asian population of East Africa descends mainly from these railroad workers. But, actually, 23,000 coolies returned But to India while 2500 died. Only

7,000 remained in East Africa. But the railroad and the coolies who stayed behind did attract many thousands of other Indians who set up little shops or dukas along the rail line. Sir Harry Johnstone, Britain's special commissioner in Uganda at the turn of the century, thought that East Africa might become the "America of the Hindu."

White Settlers

But white settlement prevented that. The rich highlands of Kenya soon attracted white settlers. And they made sure that the Asians took no higher then second place in the social hierarchy of East Africa.

The whites looked on the Indians as a threat. They pro-hibited Asians from farming in Kenya and segregated them in education and social activities. In addition, the whites, both in gossip and public speech, mounted a campaign of calumny against the Asians, accusing them of sharp business practices and exclusive-These accusations are repeated often these days by the new African leaders.

The whites tried to stem Asian immigration to East Africa. But, as British subjects, the Indians had the right to move freely through the British empire. Immigrants came to East Africa in a steady flow, mainly from Gujerst and the Punjab.

The Asian population of East Africa increased from 50,000 in 1921 to 200,000 in 1948 and to 350,000 in the early 1960s, when the East African countries hecame independent

At first, the Adians were mainly dukawalias, or shopkeepers, and fundis, or artisans. But, during the settler period, they also began to fill the middle-level ranks of

Russia Urges All to Initial Arms Treaties

GENEVA, Aug. 15 (Reuters).— The Soviet Union today urged all states of military importance to join treaties concerned with nuclear disarmament if they already had not done so.

Sources_at tha Geneva disarmament conference said that the Soviet delegate, Alexel Roshchin, left no doubt that he was referring to China and France.

On the question of treaties like the Moscow partial nuclear test ban treaty of 1963 and the nuclear nonproliferation treaty, he told the 25-nation conference: "We have to state—and this canfail to cause our concernthat far from all states and what is more significant, not all militarily important states, have become parties to the treatles concluded."

He said that only 69 of the 100 states which had signed the nonproliferation treaty had ratified it; while many militarily important and "near-nuclear" states had not even signed it.

Delay Feared "We believe that the delay in insuring the full effectiveness of the treaty is fraught with nega-tive consequences, he said. "If a favorable opportunity existing today for halting the nu-clear spread is lost, then what will be the consequences of this trend of developments?"

France has never taken its seat at the 10-year-old Geneva con-ference, while China has not publicly reacted to calls that it should join the talks. Both have continued atmospheric nuclear tests since the partial test ban treaty, which they did not sign, came into force.

Mr. Roshchin spoke the day after the announcement that the Soviet-American Strategic Arms Limitation Talks were moving to Geneva from Vienna and Helsinki. Mr. Roshchin also repeated known Soviet positions on such questions as nuclear-free and a comprehensive test

Munich Reacts to N.Y. Ballet

By David Stevens

MUNICH, Aug. 15.—The New York City ballet ended its four-day visit to Munich last night with a program of four of George Balanchine's ballets and to the accompaniment of mixed. but predominently negative, critical reaction to the company after its first two programs on Friday and Saturday.

Of the three ballets presented in the first two programs, only Jerome Robbins's "Goldberg Variations" met with general approval in the reviews published in the West German newspapers.

Balanchine's "Jewels" received mixed notices, but was generally found lecking to luster, while the Balanchine-Robbins collaboration on "Firebird" was strongly crit-

In Münchener Merkur, Helmot Schmidt-Garre wrote that Robbins, in his choreography of the Bach variations, "has, in an admirable way, found a common denominator for old ballet and the modern movement, historical material and a breath of youthful nonchalance that distinguishes America at its best,"

K. H. Ruppel, in the Suddeutsche Zeitung, said that Robhins had found new movement Bach's "enormous contro-puntal vitality" that combined lightness, grace and lumor."

But Jochen Schmidt, in an overwhelmingly negative report in the Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeltung, declared that Robbins had created "an extremely conservative, not to say reactionary, ballet" that seeks to "dream its way out of the miserable environment of 1971 into the peaceful idyll of the past." Schmidt, however, praised parts of the ballet and some of the dancers, particularly Gelsey Kirkland and John Clifford, two of the younger memhers of the company. Of "Jewels," Balanchine's full evening ballet in three parts to music by Faurė. Stravinsky and Tchaikovsky, the critics had mixed feelings, Schmidt-Garre but the longer the performance lasts, the more one is disenchanted." And Schmidt wrote that the "structure of the halfhour" has been "stretched out to a two-hour work."

Disappointment' Ruppel, like the other critics, found the "Firebird" a "severe disappointment," in which Balanchine and Robbirs had "created ao American transpartion of a pompous model à la Bolshoi without the authenticity of Russian folklore,"

Even the general condition of the company came in for some hard words, although many of said that "at first one is delighted, the dancers were praised, such as Kay Matzzo, Peter Martins, Miss Kirkland and Clifford. Schmidt found that the company, the "first lady of international ballet," had aged "with almost brutal speed" since the last appearance in Europe in 1969, in Monte Carlo. The main impression, he said, was of a "rich aunt from America visiting the old Continent."

Nevertheless. at last night's performance the audience continued its warm and even enthusiastic reception of the New York company. Balanchine's early "Symphony in C" was received with eothustastic applause and only at the end of the program, which finished with Tchaikovsky's "Suite No. 3," were there a few boos among the

Dublin Festival in Financial Trouble

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss PARIS, Aug. 15 (IRT).—The Dublin Theater Festival is in trouble, sources close to it report, and the festival's fate hangs in the balance-in the balance of the books. Its last session-its 14th, which took place last Marchincurred a loss of £12,000, partly due to the alleged cutback in the Tourist Board's budget. The Tourist Board has been the main source of the festival's subsidy, providing about two thirds of the annual grant on which the festival has been struggling to survive. The loss on the 1972 projects brings the festival council's total deficit to more than £15,000. It is reported that the Tourist Board reluctantly agreed to meet this deficit in allocating next year's grant now, but with no guarantee of further funds. If the board's support is withdrawn, the festival will have to be suspended if not abandoned. Brendan Smith, the festival's director, has suggested a minifestival around St. Patrick's Day 1973, with a full-scale festival following in the autumn, but if no more money is available, both plans will have to be scrapped. It is hoped the Ministry of

porations (which have being footing one-third of the costs) will loosen their purse strings and make future festivals possible. Stormy History The Theater Festival of Dublin has become an event of international interest during the past decade and a half. It has had a stormy history from its start and one must admire Brendan Smith's perseverance in piloting its course. Inangurated in 1957, director Smith had planned an am-bltious program for 1958. The works of four outstanding writers were to be performed: O'Casey's oew play, "The Drums of Father Ned"; a version of Joyce's "Ulysses" called "Bloomsday; a dramatization by an Ulster playwright, Alan McClelland;

three mime playlets by

THEATER IN IRELAND

Samuel Beckett, plus a reading of his radio drama. "All That Fall." The Archhishop of Dublin refused to celebrate a mass to open the occasion, as he had the previous year, if O'Casey and Joyce were performed. The result was that O'Casey withdrew his play and Beckett in sympathy withdrew his and there was no festival at all. Censorship has since lost its firm grip in Ireland and both plays by O'Casey and Beckett and several based on Joyce's writing have gone untroubled at subsequent festivals. There have way impressrio, saw his first been, of course, other woes-fi-nancial problems, lack of rehearsal time, broken engagementsbut, notwithstanding, the drama-festival of Dublin has carved out a place for itself. It is the only such occasion at which the accent is on new plays and, since there is want of new plays of quality the world over, it has fulfilled, within the limitations of its scope, a commendable purpose.

Goldsmith to Yeats

It has produced new Irish plays and new productions of Celtic classics-from Goldsmith's "She Stoops to Conquer" to Synge's "Playboy of the Western World" and from Farquhar's "Constant Couple" to Yeats's venture into spiritualistic table tapping, "Words Upon the Window Pane." Several of the plays that have emerged during its course have gone on to success in London, in New York and on the Continent. The dramatization of Brendan Behan's recollections of his prison days, "Borstal Boy," done by the Abbey, played both the National Theatre of London and had an extended engagement on Broadway. Hugh Leonard's adaptation of Joyce's "Portrait of an Artist as a Young Man," known as "Stephen D.," received both London and New York proThéâtre des Nations festival in Paris. Another of Leonard's plays

"The Patrick Pearse Motel" unveiled at the 1971 festival, was imported to London's West End for a respectable run. Conor Cruise O'Brien's provocative portrait of his UN superior, Dag Hammarskjöld, "Murderous Angels," similarly displayed, has been seen in the United States and at the Paris TNP in French translation. One of the festival's major discoveries was Brian Friel. David Merrick, the Broad-Philadelphia, Here I Come," during a Dublin Festival sesson and produced it in New York. This spread Firel's fame; three more plays of his have been done in the United States and two in England

Jesuits at an Art Colony

ROME (NYT).—For centuries, clerics from the most distant points of the globe have made their way to Rome to pray in St. Peter's and to seek an audieoce with the Pope. This summer, however, a group of more than 50 Jesuit artists from 10 countries—most of wbom seem to bave left their clerical coliars at home-have come here to share ldeas and work together in their various fields of artistic activity.

This commune of musicians, painters, sculptors, photographers, ctors and directors has set up shop in the 16th-ceotury Villa Mondragone-where the Gregorian calendar was promulgated in 1582-in the Frascati hills southeast of Rome. Some of the participants are hoping for an audience with Pope Paul now that the Poptiff has moved into his summer residence at oearby Castelgandolfo. But the priests, seminarians and lay artists gathered in Frascati are kept very busy by classes, intramural concerts, exhibitions and dramatic presentations, excursions to points of local interest and the good local wine that is produced in the cellars of the Society of The Jesuit Institute of the Arts

"This is our third summer but our first international experience," Father McNaspy said. "The other two sessions—one at Holy Cross, the other at Santa Clara University in California—were attended almost exclusively by Americans. This year we came to Rome to bring American Jesuit artists into cootact with their European counterparts, and it is proving tremendously exciting." The artists and students-from the United States, Canada, Mex-ico, Cuba, Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Poland and Hungary-include about 10 nonclerics and a few members of other ecclesiastical orders. Roughly half of the 40 participating Jesuits-most of them Americans—are priests; the others are seminarians, for the most part in their 20s, who hope to be ordained in one or two years.

Ainu Skeletons Found in Japan

KUSHIRO, Japan, Aug. 15 (AP).—Well-preserved skeletons of Almi, a Caucasoid-type people once widely spread over north-ern Asia, have been unearthed in Kushire, a port city in Japan's northern main island of Hokkaido, officials of the city museum reported today.

The akeletons, believed to date back some 4,000 years, will offer clues to the origin of the Aimu race, about which little is known, the officials said.

Skeletons of the same era have been found previously, but they were not as well preserved as the ones found in Kushiro, the officials added.

Plans Emergency Imports

TOKYO, Aug. 15 (AP-DJ).to work out by Friday specific plans for emergency imports from the United States to help correct a trade imbalance heavily. in favor of Japan.

The decision came at a meeting of Prime Minister Rakuel Tanaka with his top ministers. Trade officials declined to disclose details of the talks, but government sources said the emergency imports of U.S. goods, meluding uranium ore, sirliners

Growth in Money Supply Too Strong, Germans Say

FRANKFURT, Aug. 15 (AP-DJ) - West German monetary expansion accelerated at such a high rate recently that it out-paced the half-year growth in the gross national product, the Bundeshank said today.

In its latest monthly report, the central bank warned that "such a strong expansion in tha money supply does not conform with the requirements of domestic stability."

The bank noted that in the first half. GNP rose a nominal 9 percent or 2 percent when elim-inating the distorting effects of higher prices from the 1971

In June, the money supply rose 14.5 percent from a year earlier, while in May, the increase was 9.9 percent, the bank said. In the second quarter, the money stock climbed at a seasonally-adjusted rate of 12.6 percent against 13.9 percent in

IU sets records for second quarter and first half.

International Utilities Corporation had record second quarter and first half earnings, marking eleven consecutive quarters in which earnings per share exceeded those of year-earlier periods.

Chairman and President John M. Seabrook said the company's outlook for the remainder of 1972 was "strong" and he anticipates another record year in which "we are confident of achieving our goal of 15 percent growth."

For the second quarter, net income rose 17.4% to $14.4 million, or 92 cents a share on revenues of $285.7 million. For the first half, IU's net income increased 20% to $29.4 million, or $1.90 a share, on revenues of $569.9 million.

In July, IU raised its quarterly dividend from 35 cents to 37.5 cents a share, continuing its record of paying increased dividends every year since 1944. A proposed two-for-one common stock split will be voted on by shareholders on September 27.

More facts and figures are available in our mid-year report. For a copy, write to Lawrence Murray, Director of Investor Relations, International Utilities Corp., The Wilmington Tower, Wilmington, Del. 19801.

A balanced company diversified in land transportation, ocean shipping, utilities, industrial products & services, and agriculture & land development.

would be the appropriate bid.

For those who would like to play the Precision club with a minimum of disturbance to their usual bidding style, 'the system's inventor, Charles Wei of New York, has recently published a 64-page booklet, "Simplified Pre-cision Bridge" (Barclay Bridge Supplies, 8 Bush Ave., Port Chester, N.Y. $1.95). The book gives the North-South hands shown in the diagram as an example of the advantage that Precision often has over standard when a strong hand faces a weak one.

Standard bidders would likely to play in the ignominious contract of one spade. Playing Precision, South opens one club and rebids one spade over the one diamond negative response. North can then bid one notrump, denying spade support and showing modest values, perhaps 4-7 points. The book suggests that South would then bid two hearts, but three hearts would also be acceptable. In either case. North will raise hearts and the right contract of four hearts is reached without difficulty.

If this hand occurred in a tournament, the contract would

But one day, riding the subway in New York City and holding onto the strap, a woman unknown to her started to chat, complained of an injustice and urged Mrs. Roosevelt to do something about it. This and similar experiences made her realize that she was still on call, that what F.D.R. and the New Deal meant to millions of Americans was embodied in herself." They expected her to carry on. Nevertheless it is a measure of the stature of Mrs. Roosevelt that in the years between the death of her husband in 1945 and her own death in 1962 she established herself in her own right. MUNICH Aug 15 Two more African nations said they will withdraw from the Olympic Games if Rhonesia is allowed to compete, and the actions revived the possibility that a snowballing move-ment annual African countries still could deprive the Olympics of many star competitors.

In a major blow to the Olympic organizers, who hoped the controversy had been settled an announcement from the Ministry of Information in Addis Ahaba said today Ethiopia had decided to withdraw because a team from the racist and filegal regime of Rhodesia—and particularly a team which has not been issued British pessports—is allowed to participate in the 20th Olympic Games, Ethionia has decided not to take part in the said Olympirs and has recalled its team."

"Apartheld Cifed
The other nation, Ghana, announced it would not compete if Rhodesis, were allowed to participate. In Accra, the Ghana News Agency quoted the chairman of the Ghana Olympic and Overseas Game: Committee, David Asare, as saying Ghana's track, boxing and soccer contingents, in Europe for pre-Olympic competitions, would remain there until further instructions. Asare said Ghana was "taking this action in concert with other African countries because Ghana is convinced Rhodesia still practices apartheid."

It brought to nine the number of African countries which have withdrawn, or are considering pulling out, Liberis, Tanzania and Sierra Leone have declared themselves out. Zambia, Uganda and the Sudan have said they would not compete if Rhodesia was entered, and Egypt announced today in Cairo that its decision would be made ofter the International Olympic Committee meeting Saturday in Munich. TO president Avery Brundage arrived here today and immediately reaffirmed that Rhodesia. would participate.

"Politics, it's all politics." Brundage said when he stepped from the aircraft. "Rhodesia has been extended an official invitation to compete in the dames and Rhodesia will participate."

Meanwhile, Ethiopla's athletes trained as usual here today. Team officials said they had no knowledge of the withdrawal. The Ethiopian team consists of 34 athletes, including merathon gold medalist at the Mexico games Mammo Wolde and a leading 5,000 and 10,000-meter runner, Miruts Yifter, one of the favorites in the events.

In another development, the Nigerian Olympic Committee came under fire today in Lagos for sending a team to Munich, and sources said that it was possible the committee would reverse itself. Nigerian External Affairs Commissioner Okoi Arikpo urged the committee to heed a call for an African hoycott of the Olympics. "While the federal (Nigerian) government does not intend to interfere in matters connected with sports." Arikpo said. "we expect that the committee will not do anything to jeopardize the government's foreign policy." He said, "One hopes our sports authorities will give serious thought to the call of the Organization of African Unity," a 41-nation political group which has supported a boycott.

Woods Scores in Shot Put In Track Meet at Munich

George Woods of the U.S. Olympic track and field team today warmed for the Olympics by putting the shot 69 feet 5 inches. Woods was competing in the Hanns Brann Memorial meet which attracted 15,000 fans to Dante Stadium, Brian Oldfield made it one-two for the Americans with a toss of 68-6 1/2. Woods, the 1968 Olympic silver medalist, made his winning toss with his third effort. He said he has not reached his Olympic: peak. "I still have to work on stability and consistency," he Asked about his chances at the Games, Woods said: "I can't see how Al Feuerbach can be beaten. But if I beat him, it will be the gold medal for me.

In other U.S. victories, Ralph Mann won the 400-meter hurdles in 49.85; Arnie Robinson took the broad jump with a leap of 7.81 meters; Dave Roberts took the pole venit, clearing 530 meters; Fred Newhouse triumphed in the 400-meter run with a time of 45.47 and Rose Allwood scored the best overall time in four bests of the women's 100meter dash with 11.49.

Borzey Trimmphs

In other action in the two-day meet, which attracted many of the athletes in the Olympic VIIlage, Russia's Valery Borzov won the 100 meter dash in 10.1 seconds. Lennox Miler of Jamaica finished a well-besten second.

NFL Raiders Shut Out Colts. Blanda Kicks 3

OAKLAND, Aug. 15 (AP).-George Blanda kicked three field goals last night as the Oakland Raiders beat the Baltimore Colts. 16-0, in a National Football League exhibition game. The 44-year-old veteran of 23 pro campaigns converted first-half field goals from 24 and 30 yards and kicked a 23-yarder in the second half.

Another old pro, quarterback Johnny Unites of the Colts, played the first half and completed nine of 16 passes for 126 yards, but the Colts didn't get inside the Raider 20-yard line.

Ken Stabler replaced Oakland quarterback Daryle Lamonica for most of the second half and hit Fred Biletnikoff on an 8-yard scoring pass for the game's only touchdown Late in the game, the Colts experimented with the wishbone offense with rookie Jack Mildren at quarterback. The Oklahoma University star led the Colts 45 yards, but was intercepted by Jack Tatum on tha Raider 10-yard line.

Britain's Dave Bedford, complaining of a sore throat, seemed crushed by his sixth-place finish Monday night in a two-mile race at Stockholm. The 22-year-old European record-holder in the 5,000 and 10,000-meter runs is siming for an Olympic double in the events. He led for four laps Monday night before fading. 'Is there really any point in taking part in the Olympics? Bedford asked after his defeat in a race which saw 23-year-old Finnish policeman Lasse Viren set a world record of 8 minutes 14 seconds. "All I've done is to set the pace for others and then lose in the final sprint," Bedford said.

Soccer Salary Disputes in Portugal forward Baptista, who came from

By Brian Glanville LONDON, Aug. 15 (IHT) .- For the first time in memory, the two top Lisbon teams will have English managers. Jimmy Hagan, a former Sheffield United and England international inside-left, will continue what has been a successful association with Ben-fica, the Portuguese champions. Ronnie Allen, a West Bromwich and England international forward of later vintage, and subsequently manager of Wolves and Atletico Bilbao, has taken over Sporting Lisbon, which since shout 1960 or so has been the hridesmaid to Benfica.

I spoke to Hagan and his amisole wife the other day, on a visit to Birmingham. Quiet and self-contained as always. Hagan seemed reconciled to his two chief problems: one oppressive and the other one pleasant. The oppressive one concerns the astronomical salary claims made at the start of each season by star players. The other concerns the abundance of such talented players to be found at Benfica. Hagan seems to accept the first as something as inevitable as the climate. As for the second, he points out that at one stage

Vitoria Setubal in exchange for a large fee and the huge Torres, a center-forward who was a top scorer for Vitoria last season. Baptista's season was ruined when he stepped on a broken soft-drink bottle on tour in Brazil; but his injury only underscored how much talent Benfica has. Artur Jorge, a multilingual student and a Portuguese international center-forward, stepped in, and now there are Nene and the brilliant 19-year-old Jordao for the wings. Baptists won't find it easy to win back a place.

The talented, attacking fullback, Adolio, who did very well for Portugal in the Brazillan Independence tournament, wanted much more than Benfica offered him. At Sporting, the 29year-old midfield player Peres, another great success in Brazil, insisted, "I get what I want, or I don't play. I'm a crack, I showed it in Bresil." Hagan says Peres has since denied so bubristic and inflammatory a statement, but his president Bras Medeiros angrily replied, "He says he is a crack and I believe him; he is one, in the national team, but not for us. I didn't see him play last season, he had nine men a decent game all last season."

Presidential Comparison

Medeiros also had words for Diniz, the Sporting left-winger, and another success in Brazil. He wants 45,000 escudos a month, we have offered him 24,000, which is already a lot by comparison with what the president of Portugal gets." Poor Ronnie Allen, obliged to watch and wait.

Leclerc had been in a bitter dispute with the president of the French league, Jean Sadoul, over the case of Zoltan Varga. Marseilles had given a contract to the Hungarian inside-forward, despite Varga having been banned for life in West Germany for "tbrowing" a match. Very properly, the French league banned the transfer. "Our football is honored," declared Sadoul, "because it is honorable!"

Yankees' Sanchez Is a Rookie at 28

By Dave Anderson

NEW YORK, Aug. 15 (NYT).

—Re's the New York Yankers' third baseman in an American League pennant race, a rookie from Memoo at the elderly age of 28, but Celerino Sanchez is more than that. He's a reminder of how baseball players once learned their trade on dusty diamonds long before the Little League existed, and of how minor leaguers could be imprisoned by selfish club owners, who put their team's success and gate receipts ahead of a man's career. He hasn't had time to learn much English, and to talk to him, you talk through Febpe Alou, his teammale roommate and interpreter.

"He says be didn't play on a team with nine players until he was 16." Alou was saying. "And they played only on Sun-

Journey to Big Leagues The two Yankees were sitting on small black stools at Alnu's locker. Under his black cap, the rookie's classic Spanish festures appeared to have been cast in copper. His brown eyes flashed as he spoke of his journey to the major leagues from the family farm outside Veracruz, a leafy Guif of Mexico port established in 1510 by the expinrer Cortes.

"When they played," Alon translated, "their first duty was to clean up the field. Throw the rocks away, pull up the weeds. Right field went up-The left fielder couldn't see home plate. The ceuter fielder had to yell to him."

The eighth child in a family of 12-seven boys and five girls -the Yankee third baseman is 5-foot-11 and 160 pounds, sturdy and muscular. He described his family as being "middle class," and recalled that much of their food was produced on the farm, where the children worked when not in school.

When he was 20, he went to Mexico City to visit some friends. One day there ha played in a pick-up game.

Amaro and Avila

"The only reason he's playing cow," Alou said, "was that a named Gabriel Jorrin happened to see him hit a home run that day. Jarrin recommended him to the Mexico City Tigers, a minor-league team. He says he didn't know much about the major leagues. He get the scores in Veracruz, and he knew who Mickey Mantle was, and he knew that there had been Mexicans like Ruben Amaro and Roberto Avila in the major leagues, but that was about all he knew."

Farmed out to the smaller Mexican Leagues, he batted .354 at Salamanca in 1364, .330 at Villahermosa in 1965 and .443 at Campeche in 1966, for which Alou said. "They didn't want me. Base hit."

When they played,' Felipe Alon translated, 'their first duty was to clean up the field. Throw the rocks away, pull up the weeds. Right field went uphill, left field went downhill. The left fielder couldn't see home plate. The center fielder had to vell to him.

DOWN AND OUT-Yankees' Celerino Sanchez is tagged out in a play at the plate by Tigers' catcher Bill Freehan.

he earned a silver bat for the highest averege in organized baseball that year.

"He says he was hitting .503 with a few weeks to go," Alou said. "But he hado't had enough official at-bats to qualify for the batting title. Be had been hitting clean-up, but they put him at lead-off so he would qualify. The other teams were walking him, knocking him down. One game they hit him four times. At lead-off, he swung at everything to make sure he'd have enough at-bats. His average dropped, but he qualified."

Carolina League Sold to the Houston Astros, he played at Asheville and Greensboro in the Class A Carolina League in 1967 and 1963. "He says that his grandmother died during the 1968 season," Alnu said. "Be asked to go home, but they wouldn't let him." He went anyway. Returned to Mexico City, he hatted 314. 345 and 368 for the Tigers in the Class AAA Mexican League the last three seasons, prompting the Yankees, New York Mets. Philadelphia Phillies and San Diego Padres to inquire about him. But the Mexico City club discouraged negotlations, hoping to keep him. "He says he told the Tigers that if he didn't get a chance to lose everything, so they sold him. Now that he's here, he thinks he could ve played in the hig leagues three years ago, but he dicn't get the chance then.'

Conditional Date

The Yankees obtained him in exchange for $35,000 and a minor-league infielder, and the deal had a May 1 conditional date.

"At his age," Ralph Bouk the Yankee manager, explained. "he had to be able to play here real fast, and we thought he cculd."

At the time, the Yankees were committed to Rich Mc-Kinney at third base, so the rookie was sent to Syrpruse of the International League. But as the season progressed ond McKinney slumped, the Yankees recalled him, five weeks ago. He has hit around .370 while making some spectacular plays at third.

"He says that as a boy on the bad fields, he was always get-ting hit by the ball." Alou said. "He learned not to be afraid of

Most of the competitors have not yet arrived here and the rush is expected later this week, and what they will see when they came to the Olympic grounds, Boston says, will excite them. But the President-well, one had better treat the President with deference if one wants the love of the people, Political parties lucky enough to have a President on their side have become increasingly canny at exploiting their advantage as the cult of the presidency has grown over the last 40 years.

The rule is to make the outs run against the majesty of the White House, that institution which, as its human embodiments

More than man, though humble, mind you, very humble, aware that he is less than divine, the President is not something that slight flesh and blood would wish

This is why the outs-the McGoverns—try to run against the men rather than the office, and why the ins try not to oblige them. This is why the Republican compaign this year seems in some aspects to ignore the existence of Richard M. Nixon.

Its activities are directed by the Committee to Re-Elect the President, Its slogan, emblazon-ed on hutton and bumper sticker, "Re-Elect the President." No hint that the President is mortal, born of woman at Yorba Linda. schooled at Whittier, student of the law, husbaud, father, winner, loser, hard man in a fight ...

"Re-Elect the President." The pitch is not new with the Nixon Republicans, Roosevelt made Dewey run against the White House, Willkie, opposing FDR's third term in 1940, tried to escape the trap by constantly calling Roosevelt "the third-term candidate," which was intended to stimulate suspicion of sacrilege in FDR for breaking with the traditional two-term limitation on the revered presidency. Will-kie ran well, but not well enough.

Eisenhower, up for re-election in 1956, rarely left the White House. His opponent, Stevenson, concluded his campaign with a tough speech against-Nixon, running that year for vice-

"Re-Elect the President" is a slippery slogan for the Democrats to fight. For one thing, it suggests that if we fail to re-elect the President, there won't be any President Doesn't that follow logically? Well, who would want a situation like that except some malcontent who is against the President, mother, Friday night, burgers ...

McGovern's problem is to get the President out of the campaign and get Nixon in. Nixon's problem will be to resist the temptation to believe that he is a better candidate than the President,

Children Only At Luxury Hotel Outside Paris

DARIS. - Twenty-three million French citizens are off on vacation this month. Their pets have been unloaded there is even a place in central Paris that boards goldfish) and their children have if possible been plopped at Grandma's or at a state-run colonie de vacances or sum-

But times change, even in France: Grandma may well be off on a jaunt to Spain these days and a colonie de vacances, despite its low cost, is definitely not tres snob or, as we say in English, not very chic.

And so a new idea in holiday spots has gone up about an hour and a half's drive east of Paris in the Brie region, known until now chiefly for its cheeses and World War I battlefields. It is Mon Club, a hotel exclusively for children, built at a cost of over $2 million on 32 acres of woods and meadows and far more luxurious than most French hotels for adults.

Conceived and built after four years of planning by Bernard Fischler, 53, a Parisbased importer of Italian furniture, Mon Cluh has room for 220 boys and girls aged from 3 to 16. Two three-story wings project from a central rotunda that offers a fine view of cows, wheat and tidy shrubs, The sweeping brown and white construction by Italian architect Luciano Buttara makes natives of the nearby hamlet of La Tretoire suck in their breath sharply: "All that for children!" they say, shaking

Private Baths

All that includes siry rooms with wallto-wall carpeting, custom-designed fur-niture, gay watercolor paintings (no reproductions, as in most hotels, Mr. Fischler points out), central heating and private, tiled bathrooms. Most of the rooms have balconies and those for the older girls have bldets. Children can have singles or share with two or three others. as they prefer. There is a concierge, a basement discotheque or night club as Mon Club calls it in French, a boutique, a darkroom, a work shop for do-lt-yourself addicts, a gymnasium. There are two horses and six plump Norwegian ponies, two dining rooms, an Italian chef, four tennis courts, two swimming pools, bicycles, badminton, football, basketball, yoga, and soon there will be a nine-hole golf course,

There is no tipping and, alas, no room service. There is no camp uniform, although children must bring a raincoat, boots and slippers so they won't spoil the carpets, and there is no bed-making.
"Their first thrill is hearing they don't have to make their beds, just put away their pajamas," says Mon Club's directress, Mme. Colette Karmann.

No parent can feel guilty about leaving a child in such luxurious conditions, Mr. Fischler points out. The daily rate is ut $16), all activi cluded, and children can come by the day, weekend or month, as they like. The hotel is open year-round. "It is an emergency service for parents." Mr. Fischler says. "If they are changing apartments, having another child or planning a second honeymoon, they can leave their children with

"American children write to me themselves," he says. "No French child would do that, even if coming to Mon Club is his idea."

Mon Cluh's windows are placed too high for a child to topple from; the toddlers' section has a ramp instead of a staircase and is built around a patio so they cannot stray. For every seven bedrooms there is a counselor's room tucked discreetly out of sight but with an intercom system to check on what's going on in each room. Taped on the wall of each counselor's room is a typed schedule of the day's

There are no compulsory activities. except for some morning gymnastics, and there is no reveille. Children are expected to show up for breakfast between 8 and 9 a.m. Lunch on a typical day may consist of celeri remoulade, steak with buttered needles, cheese and dessert. Supper is a lighter meal of boiled egg, ravioli à la sauce tomate, salad, cheese and dessert. A small boy who announced on arrival that he detests boiled potatoes, carrots and chestnut purée will not be expected to eat them. Lights out is at 10 p.m.

Parents are not allowed in the children's rooms. If they wish to stay nearby, Mr. rather less grand than Mon Club, in a former blacksmith's shop.

Culture is a big side activity at French resorts and so chief counselor Michel Galbourdin, whose rather grand title is Director of Sports and Leisure, has devised debates on music, painting, concerts and films. There is also television.

The luxury of Mon Club disturbs some

French parents: "Isn't it getting them. used to the consumer society too soon?" asks a young doctor But Mr. Fischler points out with French logic that one cannot expect a child to live less well on vacation than he does at home:

"If he has his own bathroom at home. you can't ask him to wait on line here. My children went to a place in Switzerland where they not only had to wait on line but the bathroom was outdoors." The Fischler children, Agnes, 14 1/2, and Alain, 1/2, are contentedly summering at Mon

Most of the children are from middleclass homes, though a French working couple, who between them earn $800 a month, are spending $400 on their daughter's vacation at Mon Club. "She was never happy at a colonie de vacances because it was too regimented. She's very happy here. That's my reward," says Mr. Fischler, a small man with gentle eyes. and a raging stomach ulcer.

Por Americans, used to campfire songs. Cash's woven name tapes, mosquitoes and tents, the luxury of Mon Club is a little disconcerting. "If they want that sort of thing, if they have the esprit scout," says Michel Galbourdin scornfully, "I can sendthem on a picnic or let them sleep out of doors. Generally, they don't want to."

The hotel guests, gaily dressed and, as French children are, rather grave in demeanor, are delighted with their, club. "Nathalie here has been to several summer children's homes," said Mr. Fischler. presenting a sloe-eyed Parisienne of 10. How would you rate this?"
"Rather high," says Nathahe.

"You see?" beams Mr. Fischler. Mon Club is far from finished. Workmen are still building, green lawns and red roses have yet to be planted perfecneen 's several of the 20 pioneer guests now in residence have booked for the Christmas holidays.

"Eric says when he comes back and everything is finished, it won't have the same wonderful atmosphere it has now." says the directress of a 9-year-old guest. "That proves," says Mr. Fischler, "that Eric is a very intelligent boy."
